

Listening

1	2	3	4	5
meeting	catching and	3 rd FLOOR	conference room	4 PM
training	employee
Reading	packs

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
T	F	F	F	T	F	T	T

Use of English

1	2	3	4	5
formed	ambitions ^{offices}	officed		the biggest
6	7	8	9	10
ambitious	came	empress	expanded	population
11	12	13	14	15
B	B	A	B	A
16	17	18	19	20
storm	weather	time	rain	silent

245. + Writing 2

Total 26

p/sp-1111111111
gr/lex-111

The Guide to Cheering Up a Friend

lex.

Every person has experienced this problem. Some ^{people} think their friend(s) will just automatically snap out of it. But this begs the question: How do you cheer up a friend?

The answer to this question is always, or in most cases, subjective because no humans are alike. However, the following tips and ideas might help your friend not feel so blue. Firstly, let's get the idea of "just say nice things to him!" out of the way, since it's been proven wrong countless of times. Instead, you could just let them be! Many people overlook this, but it is a fact that most people just need some alone time to relax. You also could just talk with him/her. Sometimes people need an in-depth talk or something motivating.

Personally, I've encountered the situation in question a few times, so I tried to share my experience as much as I could.

In conclusion, i suggest you try these methods when you encounter a similar situation. After all, we all can learn from each other.

$$1+1+0+0.$$