Greetings! It's been a pleasure to say that I've enjoyed the course greatly. The college itself is really interesting in terms of architecture and the living communities! There were lots of students from all over the world, such as Syria and Japan. With such expansive and inclusive when you can expect the place to be really cluttered at times - especially with such smart classes. Lessons and teachers were really good though. We've had special pronunciation and grammar lessons, that I feel made by lexicon items. College had a bunch of good facilities too, like soccer field and garden, where we could plant our own seeds. As for the flaws I think we had too much homework and very few social activities since positives outweigh the negatives. I would recommend these courses to other people.
